A NEW BEGINNING

The awakening,
new life, sun,
trees, grass, people

PEOPLE!
Young, old,
All have come to share,
experience and learn of a new life

FOR BIRD WATCHING
ONLY
except for...

We enjoy each other,
but there is the one Individual who becomes singled out above all others.
He is the one with whom we share
our conquests — our defeats;
our joys — our sorrows.

We too become the One.
We took to the future,
And the hazy fog of ignorance and indifference lifts to reveal A bright sunlight of Happiness and fulfillment.

Yet the small and simple joys of home,
the old "best" friend
Are still there.
The memories are still there
Not to be forgotten.

The Quiet stillness of life and thought is refreshing.
But those times are disturbed by the sudden downpour of rain.

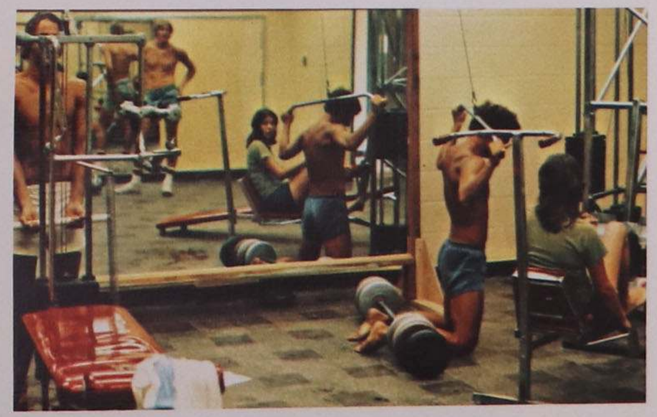
WE, the Young,
emerge strengthened.

The young,
The New Life leads forth.

The young must prepare,
Books, Papers, and Study.



Many different individuals,
Each one a distinct being,
Yet each blends into the Whole.

The Whole comprised of the Young,
the fearful, the daring, the mighty,
and the adventurous.

These are the Whole,
and they must lead the way.

We must take the leadership and develop the potential of those who come after.

Are we to become the Whole with our world and fellowman?

We are capable.
The young must set an example.
We must show our wisdom.

The young must put the theories into practice.

We are a beginning.
We are the start of
A New Life.

Golden Legend

You came asking for answers.
In return I gave you questions.
Each person must find their own answers or they will not remember the knowledge that they sought.
You have gained the knowledge
and the theories,
Now, I say to you:

"Go forth and help your fellowman."

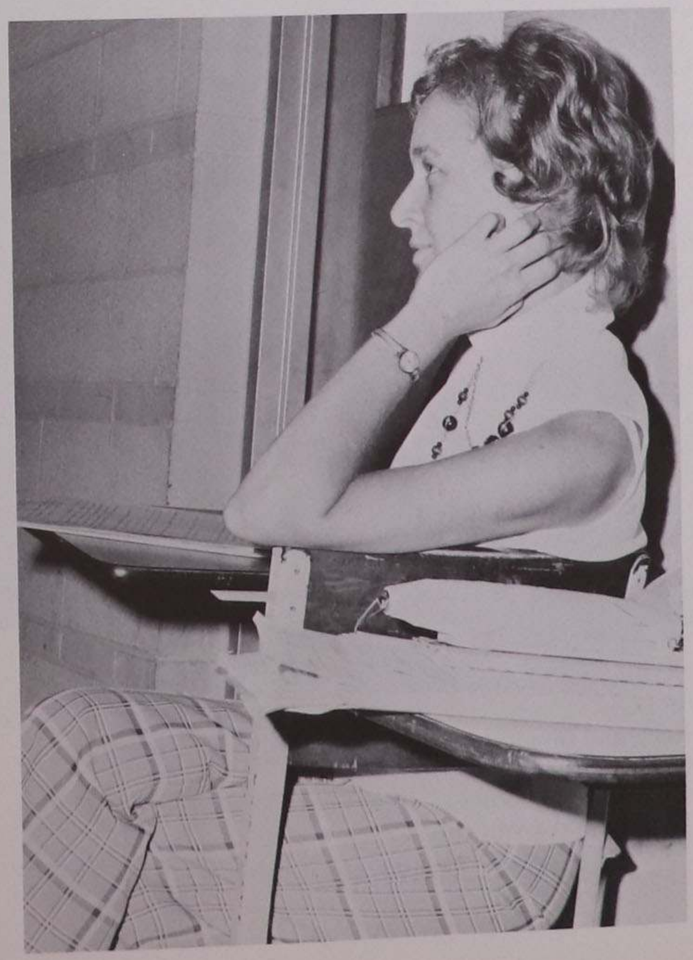
In appreciation for the time and effort that Frances Martin has given to Saint Leo College in her years of service, the 1974 Golden Legend has been dedicated to her. We, the Staff, speaking for the faculty and the students would like to wish her good luck in the future.



IN MEMORIAM

Death, A New Beginning

In all things there is a beginning.
From the creation of the embryo to the ending of Life.

Life is a journey.
For some it is a long and tiring journey
full of the everyday trials and tribulations that are present in our mechanized society.
There are those that have a very brief, yet happy journey.

The ultimate climax of our earthly journey is Death.
Death is one of the most feared events in life.
It comes unexpectedly and with no warning signs for most people.

We should not fear Death.
It is a New Beginning.
A start of a new journey that will last for all eternity.
But this journey is one of
bliss and enjoyment;
One in which we will meet
our God face to face.

Let us celebrate and rejoice
that Dan, Nancy, and Dennis have reached the end
of their earthly journey,
And have begun a New Life.

EDUCATORS

We have taken the leadership, and have tried to develop your potential.
We have striven to help you
in any way possible.
There are times that we were rough,
or so it appeared,
But that was our way of helping you prepare for "the world out there."
You must go forth
and lead the way.
One day you will take the leadership from us.
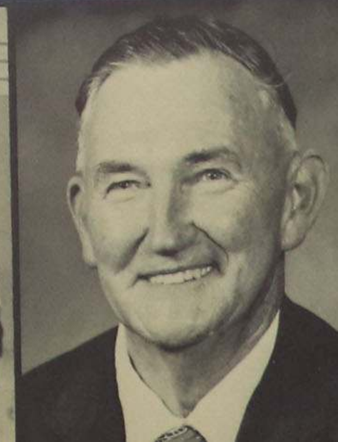
We will await your coming.



Dr. Southard

Friendship

I have been asked to give a definition of friendship, and I believe that this is an impossible task for any one man to do. We have only to look at the stacks of books that deal with friendship, and we can see that it varies greatly from individual to individual.

Friendship is not only an experience of doing things together, but it is also an emotional relationship between two individuals. It is not something that happens over night, but it grows slowly. One day two people meet and become casual acquaintances. Then, in several days, weeks, or even months they become friends.

This friendship may result from something they have in common. It may be a class, a friend, or something much greater and beyond human understanding.

Friendship is a bond between two individuals which may be capable of withstanding a great amount of pressure. But there are some friendships that are very tenuous, and are not capable of withstanding some of the everyday pressures exerted on them. But, regardless of the type of bond binding two people together, there is the ever-present possibility that it may be broken.

The ideal friendship is that which is capable of withstanding any type of force exerted on it. In our modern society there are many forces present that can put the best friendship on shaky ground. Yet, deep within every man there is a drive to reach the plateau of the ideal friendship.

All people experience friendship in some way. We experience it with our best friend, roommate, and to a limited degree our business associates.

At Saint Leo College it is possible for both the students and the faculty to experience a deep and understanding friendship outside of the classroom because of our small classes.

I have only given a few generalizations of the word friendship; but, as I said previously, friendship is an impossible word for anyone to define, It is an experiential and emotional relationship that each individual must define for himself.

Parent's Weekend

During the first semester of every year there is the annual invasion of parents. It only lasts one weekend, but the preparation that goes into it is enough to last for a week.

The college plans the schedule so that there is little time left for the families to catch their breath, but many times the families decide to skip some of the scheduled events and take some outings of their own to see some of the local attractions. These include Disney World, Busch Gardens or the beaches that are close to St. Leo.

We all try to show our parents a "normal" weekend, and at the same time try to get to some of the attractions that we have not yet reached. It is through this fun-packed weekend that our parents observe college life and leave believing that their children are happy and occupied with many entertaining weekends.

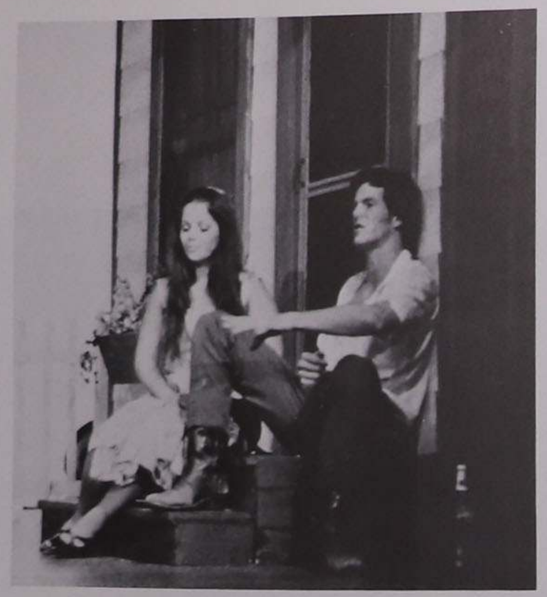
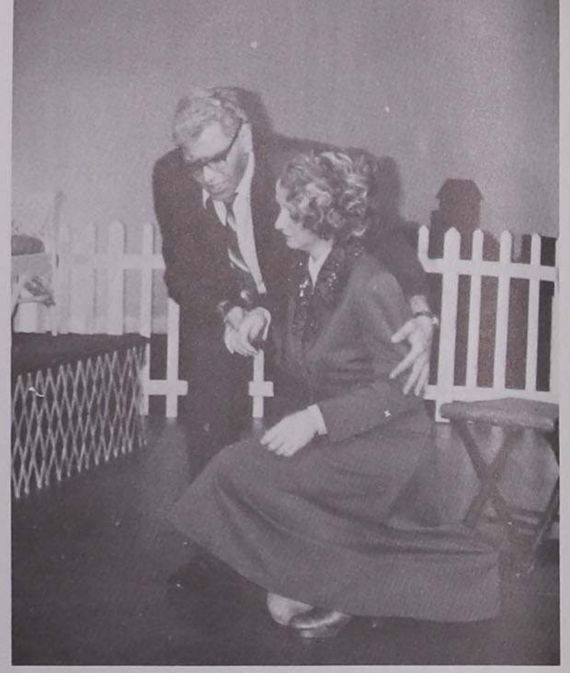
Saint Leo Theater

The theater at St. Leo this year was one of the most diversified and gave such a variety that most everyone could be satisfied with the productions.

The musical, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," was the most outstanding in performance and attendance.

The Golden Legend staff would like to congratulate the theater department for the work accomplished this year, and extend their well wishes for another good year.





A Short Story Entitled

A Change of Heart

A rather puzzled expression came over his face as the old man turned the corner of Eighth Street. There in front of him stood a tiny antique shop, undisturbed by the people who streamed by its door in perpetual motion.

"For forty years I have come along this way," he muttered to himself. "Yes, as watchman for the Bank of the Avenue I've never given much notice to this antique shop before. Why now, I wonder?"

Suddenly, as if the answer to this question gave him a quick blow on the cheek, the old man stammered, "I know . . . yes, I know. Tonight I'm lonesome, hungrily lonesome."

In the past he had never noticed the store because he had no special place to go and the shop had a warming, magnetic attractiveness that enticed him.

"Hm-m-m, yes, I think I'll go in. It looks homey in there."

Fingering the gold watch in his pocket, that precious gift of his retirement from the bank, he opened the door.

A sharp jingle announced his entrance.

"May I help you sir?" A soft, warm voice greeted his hesitating entrance. It belonged to a spinster-type woman, whose friendly manner engulfed him like the early morning mist and easily, unhesitatingly, he found himself speaking.

"Yes, please, I'd like to pawn this watch . . . maybe even sell it. It's only a heavy reminder of the past, a past which never can be revised or relived."

"Why do you say that?" The woman inquired kindly.

"It's true. This watch brands me an old man good for nothing anymore. Why, I'm an old lemon squeezed of all its juice and ready to be discarded. When I was working, I felt I had something to give of myself . . . somewhere to go. I have to get rid of this watch. Since I got it as a retirement present, every minute of the day I feel its weight and can't forget the job I so miss."

"You mustn't say such things. I know it's hard but you'll soon learn to live with this new change. Look at me. At first I felt like you, but, with patient determination, I've started my own little business. Now I am somebody once again."

Seeing that her words did nothing to relieve the old man, she asked, "May I see the watch?"

Quickly the man's hand darted into the inner pocket of his coat and almost too eagerly he placed the gold watch into the woman's open hand.

"Why it's lovely!" she whispered. "My husband used to wear a watch just like this one. After his death, I kept it and felt as though he were still with me. Some time ago I misplaced it and could never find another like it. This is its exact twin. How much do you want for it?" she asked, clasping the watch close to her heart.

Joy suddenly lighted the old man's face. This "painful reminder of the past" made someone happy and he . . . yes, he was the instrument of giving such happiness. He still could do something for someone else. He really wasn't shelved after all. "Please," he nearly shouted, "I couldn't think of accepting anything for it. You've paid me already with more than my words could tell."

Before he knew it, he was outside the door. As he walked away from the shop, the air seemed to be clearer, the night brighter, the people happier. Suddenly, he realized the happiness was not outside himself but within.

Before he went down the stairs to his train, he stopped at a florist. He just had to show his gratitude.

"Hello, Bob," he said, addressing the man at the counter, "I'd like a bunch of pansies for the woman who owns the old antique shop down the street. Do you know her?"

"Do you mean Miss Peabody?" asked the florist surprised. "Sure I know the old gal."

"Miss? I thought she was a widow."

"A widow? That old girl? I doubt any one would have wanted her."

Suddenly the old man realized that he hadn't seen a wedding band on the woman's left hand. She had thought enough about him to be sorry for him and wanted to make him feel alive again.

"You know, Bob, we're never too old to make other people feel like real people. That woman . . . she was wonderful, simply wonderful. Bob, could you change that order for me? Make it . . . yes . . . make it a dozen American Beauties."

Cage

During the last year the CAGE has undergone a drastic change from the small bar to a large snack bar and bar serving beer.

The renovation included a new painting job headed by Brother Paul with a flare of parachutes for a ceiling.

Due to these changes the Cage has become one of the social centers of St. Leo College. This is not only due to the relaxed atmosphere, but also because of the variety of entertainment which it has offered the students this year.

The entertainment has included our own "Mad Hatters" and many different live bands and performers. It has also offered several nights of special film features from the silent era.

We see a tremendous potential for the Cage as a leading social center and meeting place for the college community of St. Leo.

THE WORLD IN 1973-1974

The academic year 1973-74 was filled with several new happenings, not only on our campus, but throughout the world. The events were, as in every year, exciting and surprising.

This year, we were surprised by the actions of our government's hierarchy. The belief and trust in high government officials has declined as a result of investigations concerning tax evasions and cover-ups reported by the news media. It was a tedious year for the President and Congress as the question of impeachment was raised and the powers and rights of each office were questioned.

The International scene resembled that of the United States with governments rising and falling out of power seemingly overnight.

The most crucial events this year, and ones that affected us directly, were the energy crisis and the gas shortage. In the northern states, the temperature controls were turned down, and the time was changed all over the U.S. in order to conserve energy. Gas was very difficult to obtain in many areas resulting in limited amounts and long lines.

It was a year of inflation, as evidenced by the rise in prices of all commodities — especially meat!

Plane hijacking came to an end with more stringent security controls; but kidnapping was on the rise.

Streaking hit the campuses of America. It was the lightest and most revealing fad to hit the college scene.

Yes, this has been a very interesting and event-filled year, one that most of us will never forget. It has hinted of the many possible crises to come. What lies ahead is a mystery to us all.

The maddening rush and frenzy of the mob,
Each acting as an individual and still as one large and unruly mob.
Each striving for the best spot, and only a few achieving their goal.
Then the sudden appearance of the players.
Each player trying with the best of his might to win.

The team functions as a unit, as one;
Not always winning.
But it has the knowledge of having done its best.

Saint Leo's soccer season began with the largest turn out of people in John Swart's four- year stint as soccer coach. Expectations were high and the schedule strong. Injuries drastically cut into the squad's strength and depth throughout the season, but the "Monarch Green Machine" achieved another winning season compiling a 6-5-2 won, loss and tied record. One highlight of the season was a 1-1 tie with Eckerd College, who finished their regular season play undefeated. The two leading scorers were Michael Scott with 12 goals and 1 assist and Greg Herbert with 10 goals and 1 assist, the leading assistman was Jerry Williams with 4. Charles Hanretta and Jim Byrne, goalkeepers, combined talents to shut out opponents in four matches. Larry Henriques was named as an All-Conference performer while Bob DiNucci was named All-Conference, All-State and was also invited to the United States Olympic Soccer trials for the 1976 games.

The Saint Leo roundballers closed out their 1973-74 basketball season February 28th. The game ended a season marred with disappointments, frustrations, and also some excellent high spots for the Monarchs, who finished 10-14 for the year. The Green and Gold again posted a fine home record of 9-5. At home the Monarchs outscored the opposition 970-892, thus retaining their reputation as a tough club at home.

On the road the Monarchs went big-league playing such nationally prominent teams as Providence College, Georgetown University, and DePaul University.

Head coach Norm Kaye, who completed his 5th season as Saint Leo mentor, felt that the season was successful considering the height disadvantage the Monarchs played to, and the increased competition of their demanding schedule.

In all the Monarchs produced 4 starters and 9 players who in all shot 50% or better from the field. Considering the competition the Monarchs faced, to shoot over 50% as a team is a remarkable achievement.

Next season Norm Kaye and his Monarchs will take up the initiative and knock heads with the better teams in the nation.

Finishing with a 3 win 13 loss record does not give the incentive to the future, but a closer look does. Several matches were dropped by 5-4 decisions while many of the other matches were taken to the third set before going against the Green and Gold.

Individually, sophomore Pete Kuhlman had the best record on the team in singles competition, compiling a 7-7 mark. Sophomore Nigel Galt amassed a 6-9 record. The Monarchs made a fine showing in doubles competition as the season progressed, consisting of a team of Kuhlman paired with either Galt or David Fitzgerald. Overall, doubles team compiled a record of 8 wins against 6 defeats.

The Monarchs next season, as always, will be searching for freshman talents that might arrive on the scene.

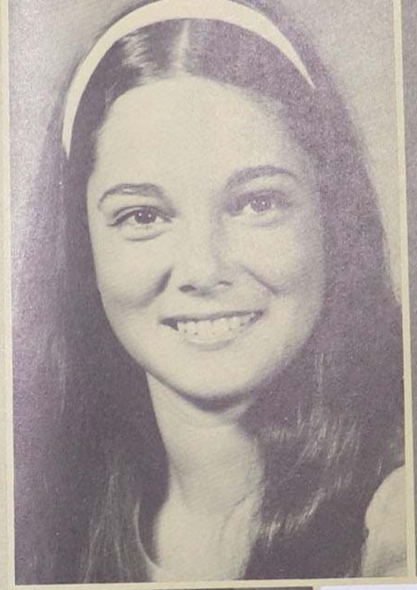
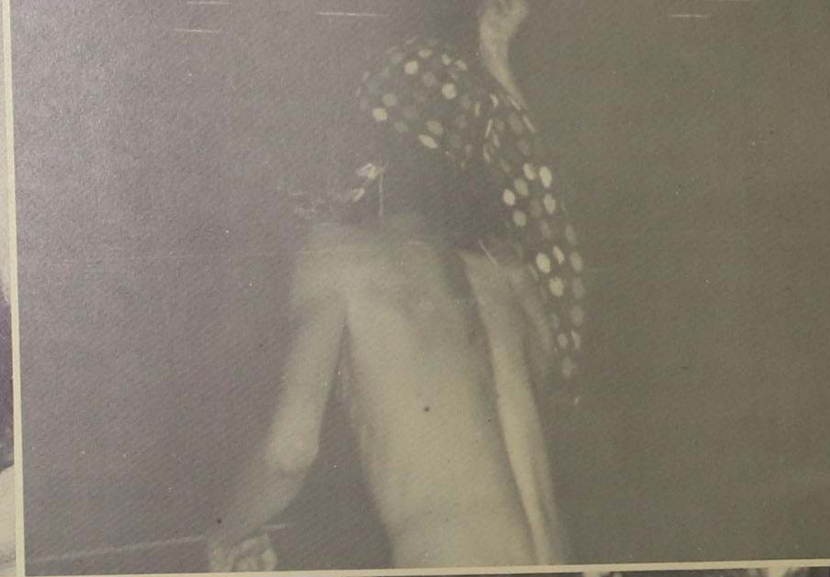
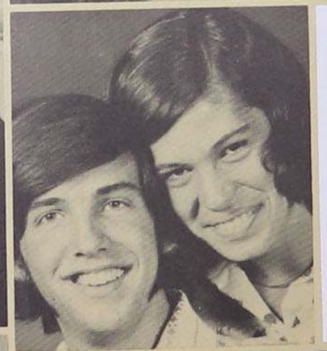
UNDERCLASSMEN







We look to the future,
to graduation and life.
Will it ever come?
It all seems so distant and far away.
But we know it will come.
And when it does come we will ask ourselves many questions.
Are we ready for the "world out there?"
Do you remember . . .?
Yes, it will come.
But in the meantime let us prepare to become The strong, the adventurous and the bold.

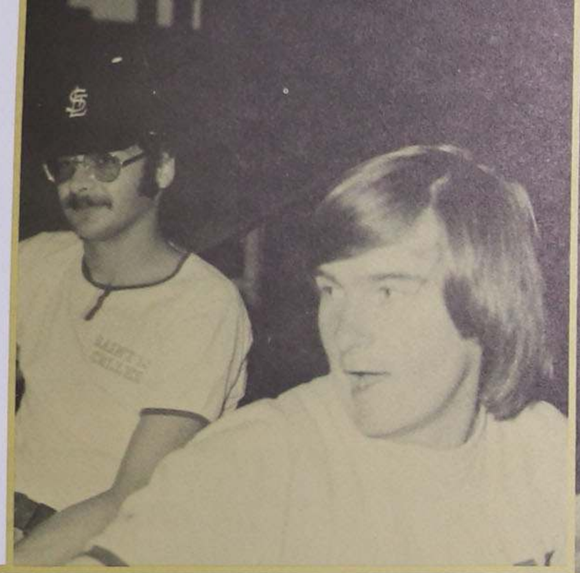
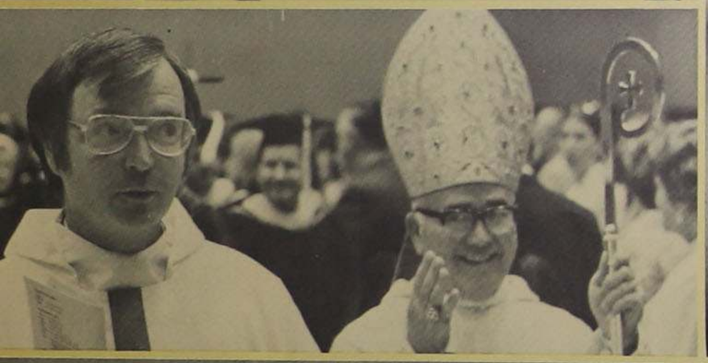
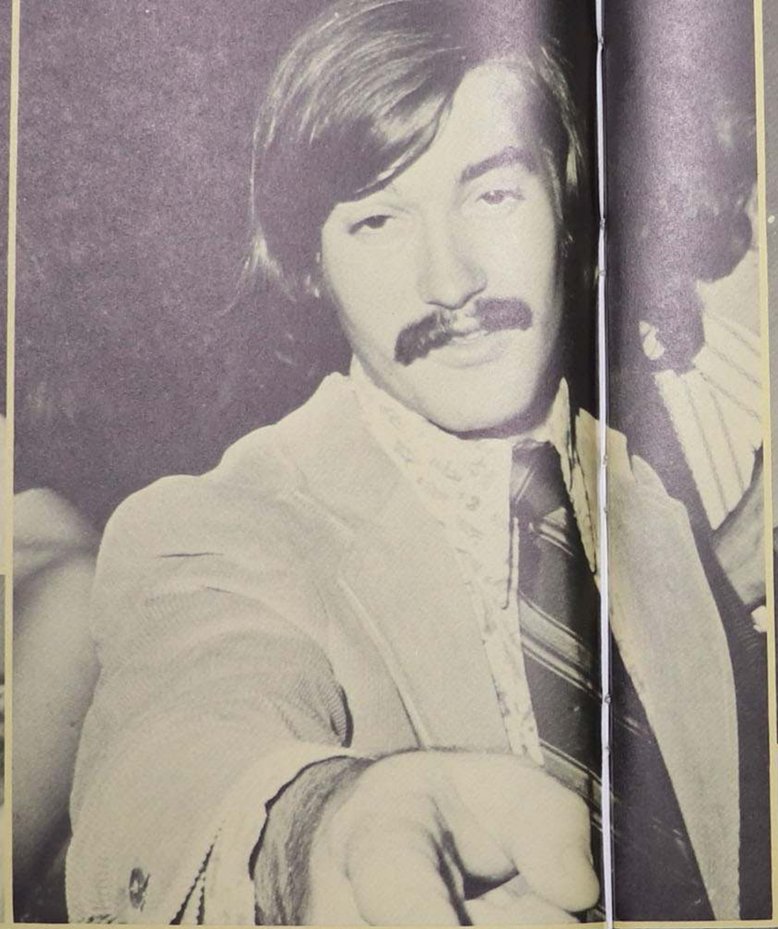
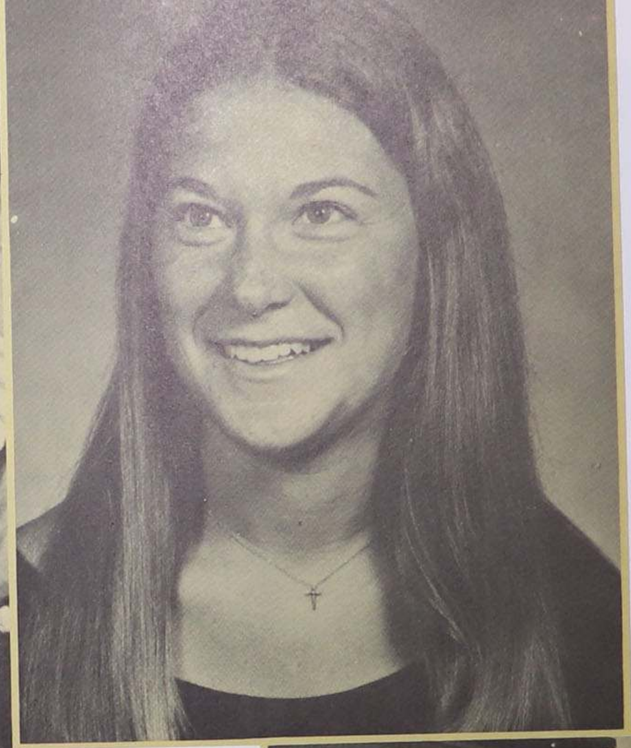
GRADUATES









There was a time when everything seemed unclear.
Everything appeared through a haze that I could not penetrate.
But now, it is parting and I am able to see the future, and I can remember where I have come from.
It seems so far, yet I know that I have a much greater journey to make during my stay here.
I should know so much, but it seems that I know so little.

I leave to start anew.
I leave those who have helped me so much to help those who will come after me.
I will always remember this place that was my home for four years.
So much has happened.
I have grown,
And I have become One with my fellowman.

One day I shall return, but I will only remember the good times that we all enjoyed — not the bad.
Perhaps someday in the future our paths will cross and we will relive our memories together.

We started our college education by standing in lines and waiting for registration and obtaining the small computer card to be admitted to class. It is only appropriate, therefore, that we end our college education by standing in line to get our world admit slip — the diploma that we have worked to receive for four years.

The work of four years is culminated by a week's activities during which there is very little work or studying but a lot of celebrating. But the big day, Sunday, April 28, 1974, is the day for 268 Saint Leo Students as they receive that small piece of paper signifying the completion of the four years' work.

One usually would expect the graduating seniors to be excited throughout the entire day, but for some the most exciting, stimulating part of the ceremonies is at the foot of the stairs leading up to the stage. It is at that point that one realizes that it is all over . . . that he, or she, is a college graduate and that he will be departing from the academic world to become another worker in the labor force.

But at the same time one realizes that he is just beginning; it is a commencement of a new life style. For the last sixteen years he has been a student and now he is to be a person responsible for his income and job.

After the ceremony there is the maddening rush outside for the final good-byes, the pictures and the small talk. One does not want to prolong it, but realizes that it is inevitable . . . the good-byes and well wishes of friends you will probably never see or hear from again.

We can only look back to the four years that we have spent here and remember the good parties and the friends who are more like brothers and sisters.

Throughout the years let us remember Saint Leo and the knowledge we have learned from faculty, staff and friends. May we all come back someday and have a reunion!

AFTERWORD

As we sit here among the softening sounds of the crickets on this last of many, many long nights; many happy, but saddening thoughts run through our minds. This past year has been a very busy and tension-filled one, but the preparing of the 1974 Golden Legend is one event that we will always remember.

We would like to thank everyone involved in the preparation of our book.

The entire Golden Legend staff for always being there and caring enough about St. Leo College to put together this pictorial history.

The photographers for their wonderful pictures and their needed help.

The Finance Office for handling our financial affairs so beautifully.

The Publication Board for its willingness to help in all our endeavours.

To Flip for putting up with our grievances.

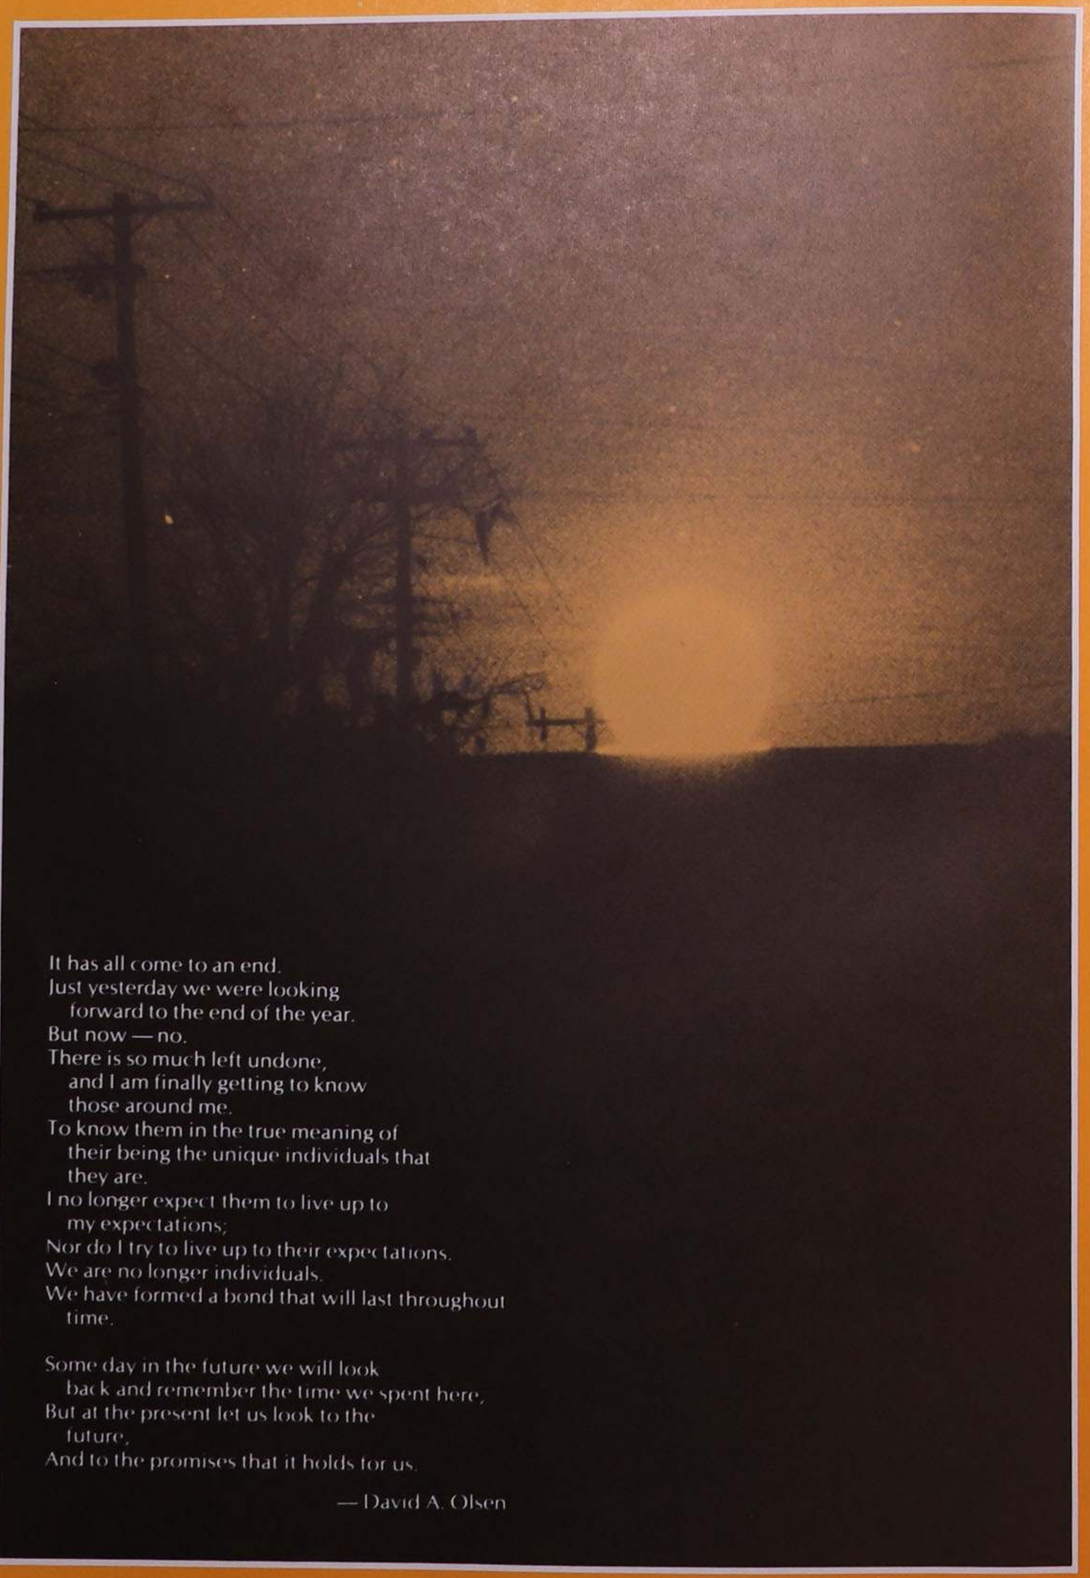
Ron Binns, the best publisher going, for his assistance.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wiseman for their photography services and eternal friendship.

And finally to Mrs. Libby Tesar for being by our side through the thick and thin. To you goes our greatest appreciation.

Our greatest thanks goes to you, the students, for presenting the need for this yearbook. It has been an experience that we'll never forget and we hope that you enjoy it as much as we have enjoyed preparing it for you.

Mike Garrity co-editors Al Love



It has all come to an end.
Just yesterday we were looking forward to the end of the year.
But now — no.
There is so much left undone,
and I am finally getting to know
those around me.
To know them in the true meaning of their being the unique individuals that they are.
I no longer expect them to live up to my expectations;
Nor do I try to live up to their expectations.
We are no longer individuals.
We have formed a bond that will last throughout time.

Some day in the future we will look back and remember the time we spent here,
But at the present let us look to the future,
And to the promises that it holds for us.
